

THE WEBINAR SERIES

Malawi has just held a successful presidential election and power has been peacefully transferred to the new president, Lazarus Chakwera. But it took a courageous court ruling and civic action by Malawians to throw out the results of last year's 'Tippex' election. What are the lessons for the opposition in other Southern African countries? Greg Mills talks to two of the region's most courageous opposition leaders, Zimbabwe's Tendai Biti and Zambia's Hakainde Hichilema, about what they take home from the Malawian example.
